

CXLIII. HEWELSFIELD, OR HUALDESFIELD

Is a Parish of the middle Extent, in the Hundred of St. Briavel's divided from Tyntern, in the County of Monmouth, by the River Wye, six Miles distant North from Chepstow, seven South from Coleford, and twenty-four from GLOUCESTER on the South-west.

The Site of the village is on the high Lands of the Forest of Dean, and the Soil partakes of the great Variety for which that Tract is remarkable; the Declivities to the River are abrupt, but cloathed with Timber and low Wood of the greatest Luxuriance, and forming many delightful Landscapes, which are so justly celebrated by those who have investigated the Shores of the River Wye.

By the Sheriff, in the Return made of all the Hundreds and Vills in this County in 1281, 9 EDW. I, this Parish was included in that of Lidney, and its Inhabitants claim the Privileges of the Duchy of Lancaster, to which Court they are amenable. With other Liberties in the Forest of Dean and the Purlieus, they are allowed a Right of Common and Wood in Hart Hill.

The living is annexed as a Chapelry to the Vicarage of Lidney, and endowed with the whole Tythes.

There is nothing remarkable in the Architecture of the Church, which is a plain Building, with a low embattled Tower, and sepulchral Chapel belonging to the Family of GOUGH.

In Domesday this Manor is taxed at three Hides and included in the Forest by the especial command of the King. JOHN DE MONEMOUTH, Constable of St. Briavel's Castle, gave it to the Hospital which he had founded in that Town; but, being escheated, with his other Property to the crown, King EDWARD the First re-granted it in free Alms to the Abbot of the Cisterians at Tynterne. When that House was dissolved it was given to HENRY Earl of Worcester, who, by an Inquisition taken after his Death in 1550, was found to be seised of it, with other adjoining Estates. From that Time it has been vested in his noble Descendants the Dukes of BEAUFORT. Another considerable Estate in this Parish was transferred to JOHN MADOX in 1500, 21 HEN.VII. GEORGE GOUGH, in 1558, obtained it in Marriage Dower with MARY, Daughter and Coheir of WILLIAM WARREN. RICHARD GOUGH, his Grandson, left it in Moiety between his Daughters, ALICE, the Wife of Sir NICHOLAS THROCKMORTON, and ELEANOR, the Wife of Sir WILLIAM CATCHMAYE, Knights. Of the Coheirs of Sir NICHOLAS THROCKMORTON their Partition was purchased by ROBERT SYMONDS, Esq. and is now the Property of THOMAS POWELL SYMONDS, Esq. of Pengethly, co. Hereford. The other Share descended to TRACY CATHCHMAYE, Esq. whose Daughter was the Wife of Major JAMES ROOKE, who died in 1771. WARREN JAYNE, Esq. of a Family long established in this Parish, is the present Proprietor.
