A Survey of the Memorial Inscriptions of St John the Evangelist and the Wesleyan Methodist Chapel, Pauntley.

Pauntley is a beautiful country parish with an ancient church dedicated to St John the Evangelist. St John's has a fine Norman chancel arch and south doorway with an overlapping fish scale patterned tympanum. Half a millennium after their construction the church was witness to a Civil War skirmish. The south and west wall show signs of artillery damage.

The gravestones in the churchyard date from after this period and many are deteriorating due to weathering. When frost and rain gradually erode the face of a gravestone a little more family information or verse is lost. In recording and photographing each stone, I hope to preserve this information for future researchers. Knowledge of the churchyard may one day depend on the recorded word. To complete this survey I have included the inscriptions inside the church.

I have also included the inscriptions from the Chapel at Pool Hill as the gravestones have now been removed.

Thanks to David Smith, archivist, for providing the Latin translations, Dood Pearce for the maps and www. forest of dean family history.

Here lie the mortal remains of Philip Petre, a reciprocal ornament of the Petres of Essex [i.e. he was honoured to be a member of family to which in turn he added distinction], descended [Rudder has 'deduct.' instead of 'deducta'] from whose blood he, yielded, having been used up in a short period of hope but equally also measured in goodness and learning over longer times [Rudder has 'longiora Tempora', but perhaps it should be 'longiori Tempore', i.e. in a longer period], to premature fate in a house next to [Bigland's 'affini' seems preferable to Rudder's 'affinium'] this church, to whom, agreeable as he is to men and now, as we piously hope, accepted by those in heaven, Edward and the Lady Anne Somerset, patrons of this parish ['toparchae' means governors of a territory] placed this monument, [which is] unequal to to his merits and to his love. He died the 6th Ides of February [8 Feb.] 1704 age 34. May he rest in peace [Rudder's 'R.I.P.' is more likely than Bigland's 'R.S.P.'].

Here lyeth in assurance of a glorious resurrection the body of William Pauncefoote of Carswell, Esqr. Who lived a true Christian, a good subject, a loving Husband, a kind Parent, a faithful friend, & a good example; he was born April 5,1645, & having a comfortable memory of a well led life, he beheld Death without dread, & the grave without fear, & embrac'd both as necessary guides to endless glory, March 28, 1691. He left William, Henry, Grimbald, John, Elianor, Elizabeth, & Anne.
All of probity, beauty, and hopes.

Dear Children all I pray take some Advices from your Father's tomb:
Still pray to God & give him praise
For all you have; walk in his ways,
Be humble, just, to ev'ry one,
Give to the poor, save for your own,
And do your best one for the other,
Then ev'ry Child's an elder Brother.

Eleanor, the daughter of Poole Pauncefoote, of Carwells, Gent. who died the 26th Oct 1669, aged 29 years.

Rudder – 'On an old raised tomb in the church-yard'

To the Memory of Poole Pauncefoot, of Carswalls, Esq E2a Justice of the Peace of the Quorum, who married Elianor, the daughter of William Rogers of Dowdeswell Gent by whom he had one Son & three Daughters, William, Elianor, Mary, & Elizabeth; he was born at Newent upon St Thomas's day 1612 and died full of honour, wisdom and virtue, 13 April, 1687, leaving to his family the benefit of his providence and good example.

The old man's missing, whither is he gone?
Sure on no law suit of his own;
Of injur'd neighbours, or expecting heirs.
We wept his losse half blind, to whom we owe
The good we say, the goodness that we show,
Take friendship, learning, prudence, piety,
Wealth, beauty, kindness, equanimity,
You have a looking glass made of his dust,
And ashes, for to dress the great and just.

will – G/A 1687/176
